Rémy is bored and he wants to watch a movie. He's also learning French and needs some practice. However, he has no idea which movie to watch or where it is offered at all, due to the huge number of providers.

He's signed up at Netflix, Prime Video and Hulu, but he doesn't want to spend his evening going through their catalogues and deciding on a movie that's also available in French.

That's where Stréamy comes into play. This application allows Rémy to search for movies based on the title, language, streaming availability and genre.

This way, Rémy can quickly and conveniently search for the movie he wants to watch, and he can easily be redirected to the appropriate stream. Now he can enjoy his evening without much effort.
